1. I promised Larry Houston a paper setting forth my thoughts concerning our retirement policy within a week.

2. Lyman Kirkpatrick buzzed and was concerned about the survey which the Bureau of the Budget proposes to make on the "coordination of intelligence." He said that according to the Charter which they have written up for themselves they would have access to the Inspector General Reports. I told him that I would oppose this strongly and suggested that he get in touch with General Cabell who is negotiating directly with the Bureau on this matter.

3. I spoke to Lyman Kirkpatrick about the possibility of laying on a two-weeks management course for our senior people this fall. He will give the project his enthusiastic support. I have also talked to Bob Amory about this and he will do likewise.

4. General Murray, the Director of the Middle Management School of the Harvard Business School, was in to see me about the possibility of CIA candidates for their new seventeen-weeks course beginning in August. Matt Baird, [REDACTED] sat in on the meeting and I have turned the problem over to Matt.

5. I spent an hour with [REDACTED] at which time he tried to talk me out of my paper commenting on his paper having to do with "fall-out protection at the emergency relocation center." The gist of what I told him was that I was very much opposed to the Director signing his paper without considering the other related budgetary problems.
